

INF.14 List of Apple Varieties

Contribution from the United Kingdom

UNECE Standard for Apples – List of Varieties

At the last meeting the 51st session of the Specialized Section GE.1 the delegation of the United Kingdom offered to coordinate efforts to simplify the list of apple varieties. The aim was to see what the result would be if we only include the most important varieties that are produced and traded. The list is designed to help distinguish apple varieties by colour groups, size and russetting it is not exhaustive, non-listed varieties can still be marketed. The idea should not be to list every variety grown in every country. The UK asked for views on what were considered to be the most important top thirty varieties. Eight countries sent their views, Italy, Spain, the Netherlands, USA, Slovakia, Germany Finland and the Czech Republic.

The reduced list is shown at the bottom of the page, the mutants of some of these key varieties are still shown (in light colour) but specific mention of these could also be removed from the list.

Some countries felt that as the work in classifying all these varieties had been done, the full list was a useful reference and producing a reduced list would not be their preferred option.

Another approach could be to try to get rid of the variety lists in other ways, for example we could include in the marking section a requirement to indicate the colour characteristics of the apple variety that is in the package, by stating “RED” “MIXED RED or BICOLOURED” “STRIPED RED” “GREEN/YELLOW” as defined in the standard on the label.

For size we could just list the small fruited apple varieties, anything not on the list would be treated as a large fruited apple variety. A more radical step would be to have the same sizing requirements for all apples so this list could also be removed. A discussion on this and any other ideas may be helpful.
