9. Discussion on new areas of work under the Working Party on Agricultural Quality Standards in support of sustainable development and circular economy

This agenda item will respond to the outcomes of the sixty-ninth Commission held on 20 and 21 April 2021, devoted to the topic of “circular economy and the sustainable use of natural resources.” In the Commission decisions, ECE member States flagged the importance they give to the circular economy and charted the way forward towards concrete actions in support a circular economy transition, including for the ECE intergovernmental machinery and the secretariat.

This item of the agenda will explore how the deliverables of WP.7 can contribute to the circular economy transition and explore associated themes which may be taken into consideration by the Working Party.

- Circular economy – Transitioning to circularity in food trade
- Sustainable food systems and the 2021 United Nations Food Systems Summit
- Micro, small and medium-sized enterprises and agricultural quality standards for resilient supply chains
- Nexus of sustainable use of natural resources
- Resilient food supply chains and post-COVID recovery
- Analysis of the impact of agricultural quality standards on the trade of agricultural produce

The Working Party is invited to discuss and decide on the development of contributions related to policy advice, guidance and capacity building for food trade.
