I. Introduction

In June 2020, the United Nations Economic and Social Council adopted the resolution E/RES/2020/8 on the Modalities for the fourth review and appraisal of the Madrid International Plan of Action on Ageing, 2002 (MIPAA). The resolution requested the regional commissions to continue to facilitate the review and appraisal exercise at the regional level, including by organizing regional review meetings. At the invitation of Italy, the 2022 UNECE Ministerial Conference on Ageing under the title “A sustainable world for all ages: joining forces for solidarity and equal opportunities throughout life” will be held in Rome. A keynote address on “Priorities for ageing policies in the UNECE Region” will open the deliberations of the thematic expert panels.

2. Expert panel discussions

Expert panels will be composed of government officials and representatives of international organizations, the scientific research community, civil society organisations, social partners and the private sector. A rapporteur will be designated to summarize the discussion for all three panels.

Following the introduction of panellists, the panel’s moderator will make a brief intervention, introducing the issues of the respective panel from a broad perspective. This will be followed by statements from panellists of up to 5-7 minutes each. In the remaining time, delegates will be encouraged to engage in the discussion, and they may in their interventions mention the main achievements and obstacles encountered in their country within the defined area of the panel, as well as considerations for priorities for related future actions.

The rapporteur will summarize the main points raised by the panellists and discussants during all three panels in a brief concluding statement at the end of the first day of the Conference.

(a) Promoting active and healthy ageing throughout life

The first expert panel will discuss key elements of a life-course approach to active and healthy ageing across policy sectors. It will cover progress in combatting ageism, promoting lifelong learning, age-friendly employment and health promotion. Emphasis will also be put on the inclusion of older persons through the creation of safe and enabling environments - digital, social and physical - that foster participation in the economy and society throughout life, including when functional capacity declines.

(b) Ensuring access to long-term care and support for carers and families

The second expert panel will present successful strategies and progress achieved in ensuring access to high-quality long-term care and palliative care in ageing societies. It will examine national strategies and experiences in the provision of long-term care, including at home and within the community, as well as the long-term sustainability and resource needs of long-term care systems. The panel will also address the human rights, dignity and self-determination of older persons in long-term care settings, and the concerns raised and lessons learned from the COVID-19 pandemic. Panellists are further expected to discuss the support provided by ECE member States to informal carers and families, such as adaptations to social protection systems, measures aimed at reconciling employment and care work, and strategies to promote the equal sharing of informal care between women and men.

(c) Mainstreaming ageing to advance a society for all ages

The third expert panel will discuss the need for a systematic integration of ageing issues across all policy fields and at all levels of government. It will look at examples of mainstreaming ageing at the national, regional and local levels. This includes an exploration of the twin-track approach to mainstreaming, considering ageing both from a societal and individual perspective, a discussion of the whole-of-government and whole-of-society approaches to policy making, as well as an examination of the links between mainstreaming ageing and sustainable development.
