Participants requiring an entry visa for Slovenia are expected to make their own visa arrangements. Slovenia is part of the Schengen area. Information about visas can be found at the following link: https://www.gov.si/en/topics/entry-and-residence/

Additional information on the visa process within the Schengen area, which Slovenia is part of, can be found at: https://home-affairs.ec.europa.eu/policies/schengen-borders-and-visa/visa-policy_en

The Schengen visa has to be applied for at the Slovenian diplomatic mission (embassy) or at the embassy of the other EU Member State representing Slovenia in issuing Schengen visas. The information about the competent embassy where to apply for a visa will be given after registration, together with a personal invitation by the host country.

Participants requiring a visa are therefore invited to register as soon as possible and start the visa application procedure at least 5 weeks in advance, which means no later than in the second half of September.

A visa application should include:

- 1. a personal invitation by the host country Slovenia (received after registration)
- 2. an email confirmation of your registration approval by the Water Convention Secretariat (UNECE)
- 3. In addition:

In the case of the representative of the State Party to the Water Convention or other UN Member State: a diplomatic note with the names of delegation members is highly recommended to facilitate expedited visa processing;

In the case of the representative of governmental and non-governmental organisations: a formal letter with the appointment of the representative by the organisation concerned is requested;

In the case of the media representative: a formal letter with the appointment of the representative by the Media house concerned is requested.

During all three days of the meeting, the Government of Slovenia will offer breaks at the meeting venue. Lunch services will be arranged in the vicinity of the meeting venue. With an area of 20,271 km², Slovenia is one of the smaller to medium-sized European countries. The length of the state border is 1,382 km, of which 921 km is land, 413 km is river and 48 km is sea. The Slovenian Adriatic coast is 46.6 km long. The capital city is Ljubljana, which is the economic, cultural and political center, and the highest peak is Triglav (2864 m).

More than half of the area, 1,177,244 ha, is covered by forests, only Finland and Sweden have a higher share of forests in Europe. Slovenia is one of the most sparsely populated European countries due to its mountaineering and extensive forest stands.

Slovenia is a mixure of Pannonian, Alpine and Mediterranean world, reflected in its natural, cultural and gastronomic diversity. It is a world of unique, boutique experiences and exceptional individuals. The bustling city streets and squares overflow with countless paths through the picturesque countryside. Here, outdoor activities and top-notch cuisine with seasonal and local ingredients are associated with health and well-being. Slovenia is bordered by Italy to the west, Austria to the north, Hungary to the northeast, and Croatia to the east and south.

As early as 2010, the United Nations General Assembly identified the right to water as a fundamental human right. Slovenia has joined this commitment by inscribing the inalienable right to water into its constitution. This step means that water resources are a public good that cannot be privatised, and that the supply of drinking water to the population cannot be a commercial activity, but must be carried out as a non-profit public service.

About Ljubljana

Categorized as a medium-sized European city, Ljubljana (its name derives from the word 'ljubljena', meaning 'loved') offers everything a metropolis does, yet preserves its small-town friendliness. Today scientists are drawn to the city because of its high-caliber institutes and university, as are artists due to its world-famous graphic biennial, art academy and countless art galleries. As four Slovene regions meet in Ljubljana, the city's numerous restaurants and inns offer a wide range of local delicacies, not to mention superb wines.

The Dragon Bridge, presented on the MOP 10 logo, is the most famous image of Ljubljana, followed by the Three Bridges, crossing river Ljubljanica, an architectural creation by the world-famous Slovenian architect Jože Plečnik, whose creations can be admired all over Vienna and Prague.
